ŽILINA

Žilina is a regional and district town in northern Slovakia. It is the fourth largest city in Slovakia in terms of population. The oldest documentary mention of Žilina dates back to 1208, when the town was made up of several Slovak villages.
Now Žilina is the administrative, economic, transport and cultural centre of north-western Slovakia. It lies at the confluence of 3 rivers, which is why it is called "the pearl on the river". The historical core of Žilina is a city monument reservation. There are many interesting historical, cultural and natural monuments in the town. In the surrounding area there is a castle, castles, lookout towers and beautiful nature in national parks.
